Bibliography:

David has 40 years' experience in the NZ and global food industry with a primary focus on microbiological quality and safety of food manufacturing operations. He graduated with an MSc in Microbiology from The University of Otago in 1978

He has worked closely with food professionals and regulators across all industry sectors, with special focus on red meat, seafood, poultry, produce, dairy, RTE foods and bottled water operations. He has strong expertise in pathogen and shelf-life troubleshooting, and particularly the importance of hygienic design and effective hygiene programs in food quality and safety.

His professional career started at MIRINZ undertaking fundamental and process-related microbiological research for the meat industry and other aligned protein sector industries, mainly addressing key pathogens, spoilage profiling and predictive modelling and direct technical support to process operations. He then moved to ECOLAB focusing on cleaning and sanitation program development with multiple leadership roles in the Australian and New Zealand operations as well as 6 years spread across Ecolab's global business based in the US and Asia Pacific. David now has his own consultancy company – Lowry Food Consulting Ltd.

His extensive experience in microbiological troubleshooting and incident prevention, and the desire to drive hygienic design improvements and efficiencies in the food industry led to his mission to establish a regional section of EHEDG as a primary resource for the NZ Food Industry.

David managed the first EHEDG Advanced Hygienic Design Training Course in NZ in October 2019 and successfully completed a Certified EHEDG Advanced Training Course himself. David is currently in the process of completing probationary qualifications for EHEDG Certified Trainer requirements.

David is a Fellow of NZIFST and is a regular presenter at Food Industry Conferences and other training events.
